Real-time as a Contract

- In software, if you state your API is "real-time", you are making a contract that you will complete in a deterministic amount of time*

- *Depending on resource contention within the system

- There is no way in C++ to state this programatically

ADC

Real-time as a Contract

- In software, if you state your API is "real-time", you are making a contract that you will complete in a deterministic amount of time*

  - *Depending on resource contention within the system

- There is no way in C++ to state this programatically

2. Real-time and Resources